

NEW TELEPHONE EQUIPMENT FOR FRANKFORT - MOKENA EXCHANGES

Plans for the installation of new dial telephone apparatus, which will pave the way for future telephone expansion at Frankfort and Mokena exchanges, were announced this week by R. F. McQueen, manager for the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

The equipment will increase the capacity of Mokena's communications system by 38 telephones and Frankfort's by 34 telephones. Both installations, part of the Illinois Bell's company-wide expansion and service improvement program, will help maintain continued good service in the two communities, according to McQueen.

Technicians of the Western Electric company, manufacturing and supply arm of the Bell System, will work on the projects, which are scheduled for completion in January at Mokena and in February at Frankfort.

The manager pointed out that no orders for telephone service in Frankfort or Mokena are delayed because of a lack of exchange equipment.

Laying of underground long distance cable between Joliet, New Lenox, Frankfort and Mokena, which was completed last month, brings improved inter-city telephone service to the communities, McQueen said. Because this cable is below ground, McQueen continued, service in and out of the exchanges is also protected from wind and sleet storms.

Soil Program Almost Doubled for 1949

An $8,310,000 agricultural conservation program, almost double that of this year, has been planned for 1949, John R. Kamper, State Production and Marketing Administrative Committee member announced.

"The 1949 authorization of funds compares to a total of $4,329,000 available for 1948. This will mean a bigger and better Soil Conservation program for the coming year," said Mr. Conrad Borms, chairman, Will county AAA committee.

These federally allocated funds are used to assist farmers in carrying out soil improvement measures under an established Soil Conservation program set up by the State PMA and County Agricultural Conservation committees. It is administered by the State office through these farmer-elected committees.

It is a program designed so that the general public can share with farmers the responsibility of protecting the nation's soil resources.

Several new features are incorporated in the 1949 program. They are:

1. A special sod waterway project which will be emphasized as a No. 1 priority practice. Full payment will be made for all units approved by the county committee and completed by the farmer.

2. Two new practices are included in the State Program, "tree planting" and the "building of flumes and chutes in water channels to prevent gully erosion of farm land and construction of outlets for water channels."

3. Additional emphasis will be placed on certain services rendered free to farmers such as running contour lines and taking soil samples.

Provisions of the state program, explained Mr. Kamper, are subject to modification by the various counties so it should be understood that all counties will not be offering the same practices and services. Detailed county plans will be developed during January.

Payment rates for many of the individual practices have been boosted for 1949. Probably the credit rate increase of greatest interest to Illinois farmers is that announced for spreading limestone. These rates range from $1.20 to $1.90 for the various counties, and compare to rates of $1.00 and $1.20 per ton in effect for 1948.

Phosphate credit rates vary according to phosphoric acid content, with 44 cents per hundred weight for materials testing 34 or more percent of phosphoric acid content. Rates for mechanical practices will also be higher. These include contouring, pasture improvement, pond building etc.

Every producer is eligible to take advantage of this program, said Mr. Kamper. "It's a good program, offering a lot of benefits and well worth the consideration of all farmers."

Some schools have a defective speech class with a special instructor for that purpose.

My Friend

Around the corner I have a friend
In this great city that has no end;
Yet days go by and weeks rush on,
And before I know it a year is gone.
And I never see my dear friend's face,
For life is a swift and terrible race.

He knows I love him just as well
As in the days when I rang his bell
And he rung mine. We were younger
Then.

We were not busy, tired men—
Tired of playing a busy game,
Tired of trying to make a name.

"Tomorrow," I say, "I'll call on Jim,
Just to show that I am thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes and tomorrow goes,
And the distance between us grows and grows.

Around the corner. Yet miles and miles away—
"Here's a telegram, sir" "Jim died today."
And that's what we get, and deserve in the end—
Around the corner, a departed friend.

Similarity of Joliet School Problem to Frank.-Mokena-N. L.?

The defeat of the consolidation plan to merge the grade schools in the Joliet township schools by a margin of 9 to one, according to the official tabulation Saturday, was attributed to three reasons. Although the rural vote came to the 9-1 margin, the urban vote showed the defeat of the plan by only a six to one margin, showing that the consolidation plan was much more popular in the city than in the rural area.

The reasons given for the defeat of the unification was said to be because it would leave the districts with $421,000 less income, as the community law permits only a $1 levy for educational purposes. Another reason for the defeat of the plan was the invalidation of the $1,625,000 bond issue for the expansion of the Joliet grade school expansion.

The third reason given was that the Joliet district operates under a special charter and there has been no legal decision as to whether such a district can be included in the community unit district. Supreme court decision would have to be awaited before this could be decided, for which several years might elapse, leaving the district without funds for the period.

There seems to be somewhat of a similar situation according to some people, in the Frankfort-Mokena-Manhattan consolidation school question. It has been pointed out that Frankfort and New Lenox grade schools still have a heavy debt, Mokena school is clear of debt. There may be some rural schools that have a debt also, as do the two schools in Lincoln Estates area. Those without debt, question the advisability of having their taxes increased so as to pay some other district's debt.

On the other hand, the most important thing, is the education of our children, and the question now is, what is the most efficient way to give that education? It seems, for the good of all children in our country, that the sections that are able to pay school taxes should pay for these areas that are not able to pay their taxes. For example, take the many poor areas in the south who cannot realize enough from their taxes to pay much on education. The question arises, should the northern states, who can afford and who have the valuation, pay for the education of the poor southern states?

Locally it may not be that one district can and another nearby district cannot, pay their taxes, but in order to bring the educational system to the most proficient for the good of all our children, should another district help pay the debts of an adjoining district?

BOOK CLUB NEWS

The Mokena Book club will meet Friday, January 14 with Mrs. Oliver Schaefer. Mrs. Thomas Powers will give the book review.

The Rock Island railroad took another step forward last Thursday when two new diesel engines were put into service that day, replacing two steam engines. Plans are to put into suburban service 12 of such new engines.

Inaugurating this new service, an appropriate ceremony was held in the LaSalle street station in Chicago with local officials in attendance, preceding the 11:15 departure of the new diesel engine train.

Joliet City Officials and railroad executives were present when the first of such a train pulled out of that city on that day at 7:37 and 8:10 a. m. A few minutes later the old steam engine departed from that same depot pulling its train.

The Rock Island plans to dieselize its suburban service by replacing 19 of the steam engines now in use. All the principle mainline freight and passenger trains on the Rock Island's 8,000 mile system are now powered by diesel engines.

The new locomotives are being built by Fairbanks-Morse company in Chicago and are 1500 horsepower and designed for high speed.

Not alone are there to be new engines, but in the plans of the road's modernizing of their service, are to be 20 new streamlined coaches. It is expected to have them in service some time during the coming summer. The cars are being built by Pullman Standard Car Manufacturing company and are to be lighted by fluorescent lights, forced air, with entrance to the cars to be midway on the sides instead of through end vestibules. The interior will be painted in pastel shades.

More Gas for Home Heating This Year

An additional 5,000 homes in suburban and outlying communities served by the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois will receive gas for space heating during 1949 under a petition filed today with the Illinois Commerce Commission by the utility. The 5,000 are at the head of a waiting list of more than 20,000 which dates back to April 10, 1947 when the commission's order restricting gas for house heating was last extended.

The new petition asks for modification of the present order to permit connecting the additional space heating in single family dwellings. No additional gas for industrial or commercial space heating will be available.

Britton I. Budd, Public Service president, said that the 5,000 additional home heating customers in 1949 is made possible through an expected increase in gas supplies from the natural gas pipeline from Texas and expansion of the company's underground gas storage and propane facilities.

"Through moderate increases in our gas supplies we were able to authorize space heating service to more than 4,000 customers last summer," Budd said. "In all cases these were persons who had applied for gas heat prior to April 10, 1947. Since April 10, 1947 our waiting list has grown to more than 20,000. The 5,000 to be added next summer are those next in line on this waiting list."

"With the additional 5,000 residential heating installations we will start the 1949-50 heating season with about 40,000 space heating customers. Even with this extension of our heating service more than 15,000 householders will remain on our waiting list."

"We regard the complete elimination of this list through sufficient gas supplies to meet all house heating demands as our number one gas service responsibility. To realize this goal, however, a large additional supply of natural gas must be made available to this area. We will continue to work toward obtaining such an additional supply."

Budd said that the 5,000 new heating customers to be served from the present waiting list includes both new and old homes. These eligible applicants will be notified by letter as soon as the additional gas becomes available—probably in the early spring.

Serve Lots of Citrus

"Serve citrus." That's one slogan wise homemakers are following these days.

With a plentiful supply of fresh oranges and grapefruit on the market, it's time to serve tangy citrus salad often. And what's better for dessert than a sherbet glass of chilled sliced oranges or vanilla pudding mixed with flavorful orange sections?

Food and nutrition specialists at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture point out two big advantages of having lots of citrus fruit on the menu. One is that these fruits are reasonably priced right now. And eating them regularly will help you resist certain illnesses.

Canned orange juice and grapefruit juice are two more items in the citrus line that should star on your menu. Of course they are fine for breakfast "starters." And give the youngsters a glass of juice to go with their mid-afternoon snacks.

Until about April 1, poultry flock owners may be able profitably to lengthen the work day for hens by using artificial lights. A total day of 13 or 14 hours is sufficient.

Epitaph is a Warning

Historians have discovered that the four lines carved on Shakespeare's tomb are a warning—and not an epitaph.

G. E. Bentley, well-known Shakespearean historian at Princeton university, explaining in an article written for the new World Book Encyclopedia that the verse is another example of Shakespeare's rare insight into the customs of his day.

The author relates that Shakespeare is buried in the chancel of Holy Trinity church. In English churches, people were buried under the floor of the church, year after year, for centuries, and space began to be a problem. When all the available burial facilities were exhausted, the sexton removed the remains of those who had been forgotten and tossed them unceremoniously into the carnal house, where dead bodies and bones were kept.

When Shakespeare selected his final resting place, he noted that the opening for the carnal house was only a few feet from his future grave.

Relying on the superstition of the sexton—and having a firm desire to rest in peace—Shakespeare requested a verse be placed on a flat stone over his grave. In modern English it reads: Good Friend For Jesus Sake Forbear, To Dig The Dust Enclosed Here; Blessed Be That Man Who Spares These Stones, And Cursed Be He Who Moves My Bones.

Rufe's Ramblings

By RUFÉ PICKETT

Well, I was able to run up and down the railroad for three hundred and fifty-nine days and make two hours and fifty minutes overtime each day during 1948 besides my week's vacation at full pay. So I can say that the Lord was mighty generous to me. Although after making such a statement I reckon there will be some skeptics just as there were way back yonder regarding a dear old lady who lived down home. Her log cabin was over on New River, far enough up on the hillside that the water never reached her door no matter how the flood might rage, but close enough that she always had cords and cords of driftwood right in the front yard. She had a great faith in the power of prayer and every morning when she would see a certain skeptic returning from his rabbit gums she would kneel and pray for a rabbit and sure enough a couple or three of them would always come tumbling down the chimney right in front of her. The feller let this go on for several years and finally he told her that it was he who had heard her prayer and that it was he who climbed up on the bank above the house and threw the rabbits down the chimney, and the old lady sez to him, "I prayed for rabbits and my prayer was always answered. The Lord sent 'em even if the devil brought 'em."

Three factors have made it possible for American agriculture to lead the world in food production—scientific farming, mechanization of equipment, and efficient management.

A legume hay fed to pregnant ewes at the rate of two pounds per day per ewe will supply most of the nutrients the animal needs.

From where I sit ... by Joe Marsh

We Both Won This One

Blew my top the other morning when I discovered a shirt I'd put on had two buttons missing.

"Joe," the missus says, "do you ever read what you write? For a man who writes newspaper pieces all about tolerance, you sometimes show a lot of race prejudice."

"Race prejudice!" I hollers. "No one can accuse me of that." "I mean prejudice against the entire human race," she interrupts with a smile. "Why get mad at the world over two little buttons?" That took the wind out of me.

From where I sit (as I told the missus that evening), a lot of us sometimes get too worked up over little things... little differences of opinion or taste. One person prefers beer or ale, another prefers cider or lemonade. But why criticize the other fellow just because his tastes aren't the same as ours? "That sounds more like you, Joe," she laughs, snipping off a thread. (It so happens she was sewing on buttons.)

Start '49 With Plan For Money Management

"Let's start the New Year right," you say. And a good way to do it is to make a blueprint on the use of your dollars for tomorrow's living.

Mrs. Ruth Crawford Freeman, home accounts specialist at the University of Illinois College of Agriculture, says research shows that families who make written plans at least a year ahead, with long-time goals in mind, fare better than those who do not. They get much more out of their family income than families without plans. Early in 1949 is a fine time to start your plan.

This blueprint for family money management will help you get the things you want—now and in the future. Mrs. Freeman offers some tips on how to get your plan started. Figure out first how you used your money and other resources last year.

New look ahead. What are the things you and yours want out of life? What's your design for living? Is it a new car or a trip to California next year? Eventually do you want to own a modern home and some land—those things that make for security?

Write down these family goals in black and white. It will give you a clearer picture of what you're working for and you will have a better chance of making family dreams come true.

Of course, you must consider other things in setting up a successful money management plan—such as how many years you've been married and whether business is at a high or low point.

Then, too, you should figure out what you want in the way of protection for emergencies with insurance, etc., and how you can best use credit facilities. Finally, analyze all your family resources, money and nonmoney, and decide how your family is going to cooperate in using them.

COLD WEATHER PRECAUTION AIDS MASTITIS CONTROL

Use of plenty of bedding to shelter cows from cold floors is one way to keep bovine mastitis under control in infected herds. Maintaining cows on cold concrete or damp ground without adequate bedding aggravates the infection, according to veterinary authorities. If possible, animals should be kept in a loafing shed where they can move at will and lie on a warm floor. When a loafing shed is not provided, extra heavy bedding should be placed in the stalls.

Public Health Bill Faces Tough Battle in Congress

By BAUKHAGE

News Analyst and Commentator.

WASHINGTON.—The dim roar of an approaching battle in congress is being heard over the horizon. The struggle will concern S-1320, the national health insurance and public health bill.

This measure was opposed in the last session by an organization formed by the American Medical association which turned out to be, in terms of dollars spent, the biggest lobby in Washington, and that is a record.

Why does the medical association oppose the bill? Supporters of the legislation say because the majority of the doctors, like the majority of the people in the country don't understand it.

BAUKHAGE

Many doctors think it would foul up their practice of medicine with politics. Many also say it would destroy normal patient-physician relations because the patient would have to take what medical treatment he could get on an assembly-line basis. This latter assumption is based on a misapprehension of what is actually in the bill which I'll mention later.

The former charge is a prediction and can't be answered categorically. I can understand it. When I was in college, I got a summer job on the Chautauqua daily. Chautauqua is a pretty big summer community, and health is important. A young medical student friend of mine whose father had a pull got the job of inspecting cowbarns of farmers supplying milk to Chautauqua. I made the rounds with him once. He examined the bovine living conditions thoroughly and some were pretty vile. He made notes and put them in a report recommending that purchases from a particular farmer be suspended until the barns were cleaned up.

What happened? He got a sharp call-down from his superior. After that, inspection consisted in opening cow-barn doors, holding the nose, and looking the other way.

That happened many years ago, and I have heard that Chautauqua county is noted for its model dairies. But there is always a lurking suspicion that when a politician puts his finger in the pie it turns sour.

The only specific answer to this charge of politics that I have discovered is one offered in a pamphlet gotten out by the Federation of Women's Clubs which says: "the plan allows for the representation of the people paying for it."

Perhaps a better answer lies in the fact that the American Federation of Labor and the CIO, both of whose leaders know just about as much about how politically-controlled institutions operate as any organization heads in the country, favor the bill. It has been supported by many individual doctors and by the Physicians Forum, and the Committee of Physicians for the Improvement of Medical Care.

But what is "it," this national health insurance bill? Are you familiar with its purpose, what it proposes to do and how it proposes to do it?

Let's go back. What was the most shocking revelation in the World War II draft statistics? I'd be willing to bet the thing that most painfully surprised the whole country was that one-third of our youth of military age was unhealthy.

Out of fifteen million registrants, five million were rejected for physical or mental disabilities. Rural residents as a group were even less healthy. Forty-one out of each 100 rural registrants were turned down as 4-Fs. It had been just the opposite in World War I when farmers outdistanced city folk in good health.

From these figures, we suddenly discovered that the American youth wasn't such a hale and hearty individual as we had thought. Later, as you may not know, we learned that 325,000 Americans die every year who could be saved with proper medical care.

About twenty per cent of our people can afford all the medical care they need.

Half our families—those with an income of $3,000 a year or less—find it hard, if not impossible—to pay for even routine medical care.

Thirty per cent of our families in the $3,000 to $5,000-a-year bracket would have to go into debt or make other sacrifices to meet the cost of severe or chronic illness.

So you can see why America is twenty-three per cent unhealthy.

From the beginning Americans have believed that sound minds are the responsibility of the state, hence the public school system. A sound mind isn't much good in an unsound body. So, say the supporters of the national health insurance bill, it is logical and thoroughly in keeping with American principles to tax everybody so that everybody can get medical care. They argue that freedom from persecution by germs is as much the business of the whole people as freedom from persecution, censorship, or any of the other restrictions our ancestors came to America to avoid.

I won't go into the history of the bill. It was written after years of study, six years of public hearings before congressional committees.

Those who have opposed the measure have made their chief argument a contention that it would be another step toward a socialized state, that it would indeed socialize the medical profession. On point one, the supporters say truthfully "that argument was once raised against the public schools, city water-works, municipal sewage systems, electric light and power plants, which are now accepted as a matter of course."

Under the national health insurance bill, the federal government would collect the money and manage it along with the social security fund which it does now, disburse it to the states for the services rendered by the doctors and approve of the various state set-ups.

The actual arrangements for the services of the doctors who would go right on with their private practices as well if they wanted to, would be made between doctor and patient. The patient, unless his family doctor refused to join up, would have his services just the same, only they would be free. The doctor wouldn't have to accept any patient he didn't want.

Part of the money would go to the states for research, medical education and various preventive services. How much would it cost? One and one-half per cent of your earnings up to $3,600 which your employer would match. If you are self-employed, you would pay three per cent up to $3,600 of your own earnings. And that, say the bill's proponents is no more than you pay now (on the average) to a voluntary group health agency if you belong to one and it's less than you would pay to a private physician.

Physicians' rates and mode of payment will be established by the vote of the majority of the physicians in the given area or locality.

Since the worst shortage of doctors is in rural areas, it is expected that with assurance of adequate pay through the national insurance fund, more physicians will be attracted to those areas. Also the fund will help to expand local public health services, rural hospital and ambulance service.

Aside from the poorer health in farm communities, maternal mortality is higher and, as every farmer knows, accidents are high. There are 54 deaths per 100,000 population on farms, only 20 per 100,000 in industry.

In the controversy over this measure both sides point to the experience of other countries. They claim the national insurance system was inaugurated in Germany in 1883. One American Medical association member says medical care declined under it. He probably knows more about it than I, but the statement was certainly a surprise.

Similar complaints have been made against a similar plan which has just been inaugurated in Britain. But a recent poll taken in England says 91 per cent of the physicians have joined up which would seem to show they approved of the way it works even if they opposed it in the beginning. And the people voted it the most popular measure passed by the present government. The British Medical association did not oppose the bill as a whole but fought against certain portions, particularly those which they thought might make them "servants of the state."

These facts I have checked as nearly as I can and do not believe they will be disputed. As to the opinions, they remain as such. And you can't look into the future. From what I can learn, the supporters of the bill believe that it will be one of the first introduced in the new congress, that it will reach the floor by February and that the chances for its passage are good.

Llanfairpwllgwyngyllgogerychwyrndrobwllantysiliogogoch is said by the National Geographic Society to be the longest place-name in the world. But it's no good for a cross-word puzzle.

TWA Made Christmas Cargo Flying Record

Kansas City, Mo.—Even Santa's winged reindeer never skipped over the clouds with as many Christmas gifts as moved by air the just-past season.

For Christmas week, Trans World Airline block off 149 seats on passenger flights for cargo. That's more seats than TWA ever before allotted to Christmas gifts.

The airline also operated an additional all-cargo flight between New York and Los Angeles to handle the Christmas rush.

But there was a rush in passengers, too, as well as in gifts for Mom, Pop and Little Joe.

Though TWA could not handle all the last-minute requests for Christmas space a year ago, the past holiday season it carried 10 percent more people with space available. That's because, with its new Constellations, the airline has added 43 percent more seats to its capacity.

About 85 per cent of the nation's corn crop never leaves the country where grown since it is used for livestock feeding. Only 15 per cent finds its way into trade channels, most of which is marketed through the principal grain exchanges at Chicago, Minneapolis, and Kansas City.

His Growing Years

Lesson for January 16, 1949

DOUBTLESS God can do anything he wants to do. He could have sent Jesus to earth on a moon-beam; he could have had him for the first 30 years of his life on a lonely peak in the Andes, far from any human dwelling; he could have sent him into the world full-grown, without ever having to go through the grind of growing and learning as the rest of us do. But God did not plan it that way. If the manhood of Jesus was to be real, and not a hothouse facsimile, he had to come up the hard way. Angels do not grow, they just are; but human beings grow. The great difference between Jesus and ordinary mortals is not that they grow and he did not; the difference is that he grew straight.

No 'Good Chance'

THE world around us makes its impression on us; it makes no impression on dolls. They go on smiling their built-in, painted-on smiles, but we have to learn through tears. And so did Jesus. The heavenly Father saw to it that his experiences were not always easy one. He was born in a stable, of parents who were very poor, living the first few years of his life as a displaced person in a foreign country, with a price on his baby head.

He grew up in a village "off the main line," among companions not one of whom ever became famous, working through long years at a simple and not too well-paid trade. During Jesus' first 30 years his neighbors never guessed that the most extraordinary person of history was living in their village.

We sometimes wish that we had an easier time of it, and that God had seen fit to cast our lot in some big city with a rich family, instead of where we are. We feel we could be better people if we "had a chance." Yet every reader of these lines has a far better chance than Jesus. It did not take perfect surroundings to shape a perfect life.

Holy Family

WE CALL Joseph and Mary and the rest the "Holy Family," but they were not known that way in Nazareth. They were just Joseph the carpenter, and his Mary. Then there were the boys and girls; Mark (6:3) tells the boys' names, but no one ever remembered to put down the sisters' names. Even then it was no small family. Jesus, as the oldest of seven, would have many responsibilities. After Joseph's death he would be the chief breadwinner. Seeing that the rent was paid, that there was grain in the house for Mary to grind into meal, finding money for clothes for seven growing children—this could not have been easy for Jesus the young carpenter.

They were not an easy family to live with, those boys and girls. When Jesus later began his work of teaching and healing, we hear that even his brothers did not believe in him. But in spite of the brothers, there was always Mary. Mother-like, she loved her first-born as no other could or did.

There are some who worship her as "Queen of Heaven," but it is enough for us to remember that she was queen of the home where Jesus the child grew to be Jesus the man. Not this side of heaven can we know how much we owe, as Christians, to this one woman, whose mind and spirit were woven into the thought and spirit of her Son.

Home Memories

INDEED, Jesus' whole boyhood was woven into his manhood. Among life's most precious memories are those of our growing years. Later on, we can see how Jesus' mind was bright with memories of home. The parables of the patched garment, of the leaven hidden in the meal, of the poor woman hunting with a lamp for her one lost coin, of the hungry neighbor at midnight, of the son who said "I go" but did not go—these and many others may well be echoes of Jesus' boyhood home. Deeper than these are Jesus' habits of prayer, his fondness for calling God "Father," his familiarity with Scripture even in death's agony—here surely are patterns learned in childhood's growing years.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

What makes a free press possible? Private Enterprise. In every country where freedom of the press is lacking, or curbed, you will find a totalitarian government (a dictatorship). Under such a regime, government owns the basic industries. There is no incentive for constant improvement in order to appeal to the buying public. There is no particular reason for telling the public about all manner of products, such as is commonplace in the United States, in order to build business. The people have to take what the government offers and like it—there is no competition.

Totalitarian governments seek unbridled power. Under such governments, there can be no free press for two very good reasons. First, government controls all the news and all the newspapers. Second, government-owned industries do not have to advertise. They do not have to win the public's business by superior products and salesmanship.

No country in the world has 12,000 rural daily and weekly newspapers, in addition to the metropolitan press, except the United States. No country in the world has a newspaper in practically every town of a few hundred population. Their income is derived from private enterprise—thousands of competing industries, from the greatest railroad and public utility to the smallest bakery and laundry. They all advertise to popularize their services or products and win public favor and business.

It has often been charged, for political purposes, that advertising controls the American press. This is not so because competition is so varied that no branch of business is powerful enough to dominate the press. Volume and variety in advertising makes possible a free press.

No group of men and women in the United States is more vitally interested in opposing government ownership of business, as a matter of principle, than are newspaper editors. They are the nation's safeguard against the economic teachings of many of our principal colleges, and text books which openly espouse the superiority of government operation of business as contrasted with private operation, on the phoney "liberal" philosophy that we can have outgrown the days of private endeavor, and that only government is now capable of handling the basic industries of the nation. Such teachings are the opposite of every principle upon which our government was built, and if accepted will lead to the destruction of private enterprise including a free press. When that happens personal liberty itself will be gone.

This is something for editors, industrial leaders and individuals to think about, because the ground is already well prepared to extend government ownership of business (socialism) in our country.

The first bulk grain elevator, built of brick, was completed in Chicago in September 1848. It had a capacity of 80,000 bushels and was operated by means of steam power. Today, the largest elevator holds almost 10,000,000 bushels.

Illinois TAX FACTS

By George A. Mahin, Executive Secretary Taxpayers' Federation of Illinois

The 100 percent laws should NOT be repealed.

One of the reasons given by the Executive Board of the Illinois Association of Supervisors and County Commissioners for repeal of the 100 percent assessment laws, as set forth in last week's column, was that application to personal property assessments of the same multiplier that is determined from and applied to real estate assessments results in inequity.

Before the 100 percent assessment laws became effective on January 1, 1946, the local assessors determined the taxable values of real estate and personal property. If the local assessor assessed a house worth $10,000 at $2,500, and assessed the corn in the crib on a farm on April 1 worth $10,000 at $1,250, then the owner of the house was unfairly assessed compared to the owner of the corn in the crib. The owner of the house had to pay twice as much tax as the owner of the corn in the crib, although the house and the corn were in fact worth the same amount of money.

Under the 100 percent assessment laws, if the State Department of Revenue finds that the house worth $10,000 is assessed at $2,500, or one-fourth of its full value, and that this is the average for the county, then the State Department of Revenue directs the county clerk to multiply the assessed value of all real estate and personal property by four. After the county clerk multiplies all property by four, the owner of the house pays taxes on a $10,000 valuation, the owner of the corn in the crib pays taxes on a $5,000 valuation. The owner of the house is still paying twice as much taxes as the owner of the corn in the crib. This is inequitable, certainly. But the inequity is exactly the same as before the 100 percent assessment laws and results from the failure of the local assessor to assess uniformly and not from the 100 percent assessment laws.

Now, suppose the 100 percent assessment laws are repealed. The owner of the house again pays taxes on a $2,500 valuation. The owner of the corn in the crib pays taxes on a $1,250 valuation. The owner of the house is still paying twice as much taxes as the owner of the corn in the crib, and the same inequity still exists.

Obviously, the argument of inequity as a basis for repeal of the 100 percent assessment laws is not supported by facts.

LIVESTOCK HARMED BY SHOW FITTING

That prize-winning champion at a stock show may be just a dud when it comes to genuine health and vigor. Fitting livestock to the fat, sleek perfection required to cop a blue ribbon carries a penalty of possible serious liver damage and lowered ability to reproduce, according to prominent veterinarians who have cared for exposition livestock. The heavy grain feeding required to achieve the "Nth degree" of show quality is harmful to the liver, and the result is often a destructive organic disease that causes progressive deterioration and eventual death.

WHEN you see the 1949 Chevrolets, a glance will be enough to tell you they're new—all new—in line and contour, in beauty and style. And when you look inside, and under the hood, and beneath the chassis, you'll see that their newness is not merely in outward appearance, but in design and engineering and construction as well.

But, to a lot of people, the 1949 Chevrolet is already old. They know what it will do, and how exceedingly well it will do it—they know all about its performance, its comfort, its power, safety, durability and economy. They are the engineers and technicians of the General Motors Proving Ground—the largest, most completely equipped, outdoor testing laboratory in the automobile world.

Here, before a single new 1949 Chevrolet

let went into production, experimental models were tested—made to show that they possess, in greater measure than ever, all those qualities on which Chevrolet has built its leadership.

In short, the General Motors Proving Ground tests are your assurance that your new-model Chevrolet has proved its worth through many months and many, many thousands of miles of rough handling.

Soon you will see the new Chevrolet—and when you do, you will see a car not only new, but tried and true.

FARMERS' ESTIMATES

January 15, 1949 is the last day for farmers to file Declaration of Estimated Tax on 1948 incomes. For taxpayers other than farmers it is the due date for the final payment on their 1948 Estimates. It is also the last day on which an amended estimate may be filed.

Farmers on a calendar year basis have until January 15, 1949 to file Estimates for year 1948. A person is considered a farmer if his estimated gross income from farming is at least two thirds of his total income from all sources for the year. In this connection, rent received from a farm does not constitute farm income unless the farm is rented on shares. In which case both the tenant and the landlord are farmers.

The law requires that the estimated tax shown by a farmer must be at least 66 2/3 percent of his actual tax on his final return.

However, a taxpayer may not be penalized for underestimation if he estimates his income to be at least as much as it was the year before, and com-ard Yates, and Mrs. Walter Hamilton. Games were played and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Leonard Warming and Mrs. J. S. Randall. Forty-six guests attended the party, and presented Mrs. Miller with many lovely and beautiful gifts in a basket decorated in pink and blue. Refreshments were served by the hostesses, and they too were carried out in the color scheme of pink and blue.

The MYF of the Methodist church entertained the Manhattan and Frankfort MYF at a potluck supper in the local church basement Sunday evening at 6:30. Approximately 70 attended. Joan Kern led the group in the singing of several songs. Edward Hudson, a magician from Chicago entertained during the evening. Those in charge of the party were: dinner committee, Mae Ann Oster, Geneva Oster, and Don Ingram; table decorations, Joan Kern, Fern Mooney, Phyllis Palmer, Dick Ingram and Wesley Seivert.

Approximately 150 guests attended the Bowman Dairy supper which was such a huge success, in the local school auditorium Thursday night. The supper was sponsored by the PTA.

The New Lenox Leisure Hour 4H club will meet Tuesday evening January 18 in the home of Mrs. Walter Hamilton at 7:30 o'clock. Definite decisions must be turned in at this meeting on the purchasing of material for their 4H uniforms.

Mrs. Merna Seivert was ill in her home last week.

The Brownie Scout troop No. 100 met for their regular meeting last Wednesday afternoon at 3:30 in the Methodist church with their leader Mrs. Beverly Valey.

The Intermediate Girl Scout troop No. 96 met Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 in the local school for their first meeting of the New Year.

GOOD PASTURES THE KEY TO SUPERIOR STOCK

The importance of good pastures for raising strong, healthy livestock is emphasized by the Journal of the American Veterinary Medical Association in a comment on the vigor of French race horses. "French horses have won the English Derby two years in succession. Superiority of pastures in France is believed to help give them their championship stamina," the Journal said.

America has become the greatest food producing nation in the world because the free constant markets provided by the commodity exchanges have enabled the farmer to produce to the maximum.

Public Notice

Notice of Proposed Change in Schedule G-6

The Public Service Company of Northern Illinois hereby gives notice to the public that it has filed with the Illinois Commerce Commission on January 3, 1949, the following proposed changes in its gas rate schedule:

1. A list of communities supplied gas service, revised to indicate those communities recently converted from mixed gas to natural gas or recently incorporated.

2. Rate 37, Industrial Volume Gas Service—Off-Peak. Gas is served under this rate to certain large industrial customers who use some other form of fuel during the peak period which includes the winter months. It is being refilled so as to eliminate the possibility of gas being used for space heating during the peak period and to limit the use of gas for such purposes during the off-peak period. Other changes are designed to conform the use of gas under this rate with the Company's present load conditions.

3. Rider 2, Gas Main Extension. This rider is refilled to make effective its refund provision for gas main extensions in the future, where an advance deposit is required, in accordance with a proviso contained in Rules 21 and 22 of the Commission's General Order No. 159.

Further information may be obtained with respect thereto either directly from this Company or by addressing the Secretary of the Illinois Commerce Commission at Springfield, Illinois.

A copy of the proposed changes in the schedule may be inspected by any interested party at any business office of this Company.
